

Rules & Regs

We know, rules are no fun – but they help us keep everything in order. Below are the 2018 IGNITE Cup rules & regs. If you have any questions, email ignitecup@igniterockford.com and we'll help!

Mins & Maxs

Each official IGNITE Cup event has a set number of minimum and maximum number of participants from each team able to play. Each team must enroll the minimum number of players to qualify for points. While teams without the minimum number of players are able to participate, they will not receive points. Maximums do not have to be met to participate. Points will be adjusted to remain fair to all teams within the min and max range.

Subs

Your team is your team. Can't make an event? Send a sub! No need to check in with us – just make sure your team has representation that meets the minimum.

Bummer Team

Is your assigned team less than stellar? Let us know – sooner rather than later. If you find most of your team moved to Texas, is no longer showing up, or are just the worst, let us know and we'll find you a new team.

Team Captain Responsibilities

Each Team Captain has the heroic and challenging task of keeping your team awesome. We are counting on you to help motivate your team and keep track of who is attending which events. We just need you to get people to events and have fun. You can do that because you're awesome, right? We knew it.

Head Count

Team captains are in charge of communicating with team members and deciding who will attend which events. You have the power!! We will check in with you a few days before the event if we need a final count or additional information – like your team's chosen pizza toppings. Should you want to be an over achiever (we love those), feel free to proactively email that information to ignitecup@igniterockford.com when you know it.

Communication

We will rely on your to communicate events, potential changes, etc. to your team members. While everyone should be receiving the weekly e-newsletter which will continue plenty of information on IGNITE Cup, we recommend staying in touch with your teammates. Should we have any changes or information that needs to get out, we will contact you and you will be responsible for sharing the information with your team.
